Notes:

First, While the schedule may seem long since it goes through May 2021, please keep in mind that we are only meeting once a week. This should give you plenty of time to be able to read the material and do the assignments. The goal of the class is to teach you new or improve your current skills sets in being able to study the Bible for yourself and develop confidence in your understanding of what God has revealed and develop personal convictions because of that.

Second, if you fall behind on reading / assignments, then work on the current assignments and then do your best to catch up on the past ones. While there is some progression in learning with current lessons linked to the previous ones, each class can stand on its own as important lesson. The goal is to gain or improve skills. It would of course be best if you are able to do all the work, but that will still learn even if you are only able to complete part of the work.

Third, ATTEND CLASS even if you are not fully prepared because you will gain from listening to the class discussion of the assignments. The video will be posted for watching it for those who miss the class or join after our start date.

Fourth, handouts & papers will be physically available in class and emailed out prior to the class and posted at <https://gracebibleny.org/hermeneutics> which will also contain the links to any other materials and the videos.

Fifth, I anticipate being able to maintain this schedule throughout the class since offering it via Zoom will allow me to teach it even if inclement weather keeps anyone else from being physically present. However, the schedule is subject to change if I am not able to make a class due to either sickness or a change in my travel plans.

The ZOOM invitation is as follows:

Topic: Hermeneutics

Time: Thursdays, 7 pm (login begins at 6:45 pm)
